Miller Hall Dedicated

GREAT ADVANCES have been made in the pharmaceutical profession, but there is still a real need today for trained pharmacists to serve both our nation and the world.

This was one of the main ideas brought out by Dr. Glenn L. Jenkins, dean, School of Pharmacy, Purdue University, in his address at the dedication on January 28 of the new A.P.I. Miller Pharmacy Hall. The building was dedicated in memory of the late Dr. Emerson R. Miller, who came to Auburn as the first teacher of pharmacy in 1895, and contributed greatly to its development in Alabama.

Speaking on "Education for Professional Service," Dr. Jenkins pointed out that "based on the available evidence, it is clear that there will be a continuing shortage of pharmacists until about 1960, assuming that there is no world war." This conclusion he based on the continuing expansion of the industry, the accumulated shortage of pharmacists from war years, and the growing needs of the armed forces.

Advice to students

GREETINGS were extended from the American Pharmaceutical Assn. by its president, R. Q. Richards. Mr. Richards addressed some practical advice to the large number of students in the audience, naming character and integrity as prime requisites for success in the field of pharmacy.

Another outstanding speaker on the program was G. H. Bledsoe, Mobile, president of the Alabama Pharmaceutical Assn., who told of the history and operations of the association and paid tribute to Dr. Miller who for more than 17 years contributed to the development of the science and practice of pharmacy in Alabama.

'Red' Sugg speaks

PHARMACY ALUMNI of Auburn were represented by W. C. "Red" Sugg, '31, past president of the Auburn Alumni Assn., who urged alumni to encourage high school students to investigate the many opportunities in pharmacy at Auburn.

State Highway Director Guerry Pruett, '27, representing Governor Gordon Persons, made the presentation of the pharmacy hall to A.P.I. President Ralph Draughon received the building for the college. George W. Hargreaves, A.P.I. professor of pharmacy, presided at the ceremonies in the absence of Dean Lynn S. Blake, who was ill.

Dr. John H. Leith, minister, First Presbyterian Church of Auburn, opened and closed the dedication services with prayer.

Outstanding educator

DR. MILLER, to whom the building was dedicated, is noted for having laid the foundations, more than a half-century ago, for the present A.P.I. School of Pharmacy. He was a scholar with exceptional training, and an outstanding chemist and educator.

Professor of pharmacy at Auburn from 1896 until 1913, except for one year, Dr. Miller was a member of numerous professional organizations, and a frequent contributor to the Journal of the American Pharmaceutical Assn. His death came at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota, on October 31, 1929.

First in Alabama

THE FIRST BUILDING in Alabama to be devoted exclusively to the teaching of pharmacy, Miller Hall was completed and occupied in May, 1952. It contains some 23,000 square feet of floor space, and was built and equipped at a cost of about $350,000.

Providing modern classrooms and laboratories for all instruction in the school's five departments, Miller Hall is located near the heart of the campus, overlooking Cliff Hare Stadium.

A neat two-story structure, the building has on the first floor the dean's offices, the Pharmacology Laboratory, the tical Assn.; (third row) President Ralph Draughon, and Dr. Glenn L. Jenkins, dean, School of Pharmacy, Purdue University. Dr. Jenkins, outstanding educator, delivered the main address

Pharmaceutical Preparations Laboratory, offices for the professors in charge of laboratories, library, dark room, stock room and a fire-proof vault for storage of volatile solvents.

Modern laboratories

SPACE ON the second floor is devoted entirely to laboratories and classrooms. Here are the laboratories for the teaching of Pharmacognosy, Pharmaceutical Chemistry and Dispensing. Two research laboratories provide for faculty research and for graduate work. There is also a graduate seminar room.

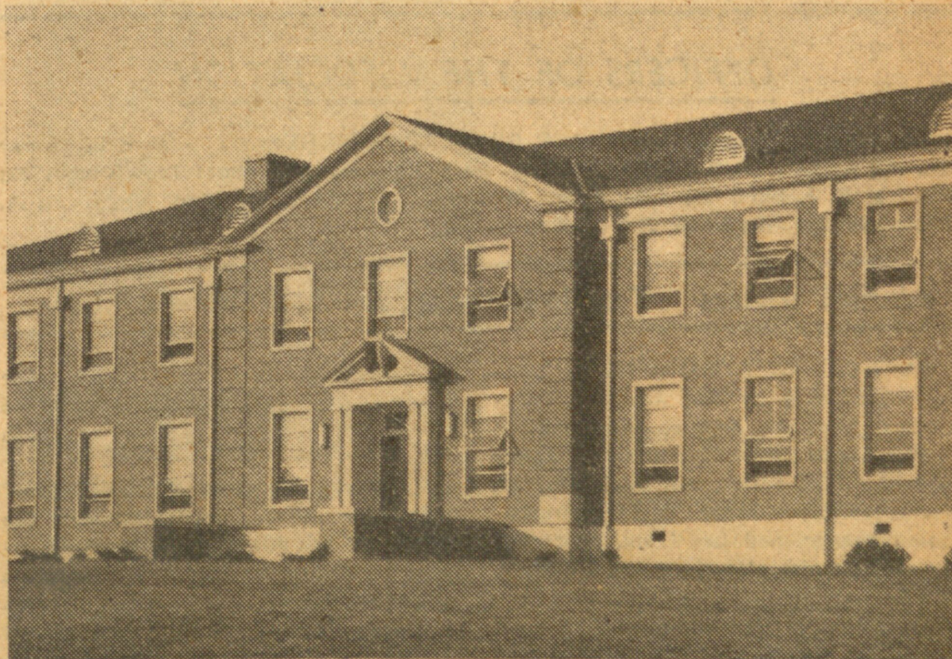

The basement, which provides room for future expansion, houses a laboratory in Experimental Pharmacology. The whole plant suggests the developments of modern pharmacy that are the logical extensions of Dr. Miller's pioneer work on the Auburn campus.

Jefferson County

"WHAT EFFECT will the NCAA's killing of the two-platoon system have on Auburn football?" That was the big question that Coach Shug Jordan tried to answer for close to 400 alumni and guests at the annual football party of the Jefferson County Auburn Club on January 30.

In a nutshell, what Jordan told the group was that the Auburn grid picture would not be changed considerably because of the NCAA rule. Neither the varsity squads nor the coaching staff will be reduced.

"We travelled with about 37 boys in 1937, an average year under the old rule, and a check showed we carried about 42 players last year," the amiable Auburn mentor said. "We had seven coaches in 1937, seven in 1952."

Jordan also predicted that there would be no great deemphasis in recruiting. "In fact," Jordan said, "it may intensify recruiting for certain types of boys."

Coach Jordan praised the 16 senior players in whose honor the party was given, saying that he thought the 1952 team was better than the 1951 team which won five games. W. D. Alston, '28, vice-president of the Jeffco alumni club, presented the seniors with watches as one of the highlights of the meeting.

In addition to Jordan, speakers on the program were Jeffco Alumni President John Davis, Jr., '39; Al Biggio, '26; Bo Russell, '39; Athletic Director Jeff Beard, '32; Alumni Secretary Joe Sarver, '37; Travis Tidwell, '49, and Col. Harry Fox, '29.

Mr. Biggio presented Elmer Bissell, '39, a trophy—a miniature mike—for the public relations work his firm had done for Auburn in '52 in sponsoring the football games over the state network.

Colonel Fox, one of the featured speakers, is presently district engineer of the Mobile District, Corps of Engineers, and is a former Auburn grid star.

Grid seniors who received watches were Lee Hayley, Bill McMurry, Percy Alford, Bobby Jordan, Guy Bruce, Herman Howard, Bill Turnbeaugh, Rigas Coptias, Herbert Jordan, Dudley Spence, Jimmy Cline, Sam Hanks, Foy Thompson, Eric Sauerbrey, and Jack Langford.

A number of high school players who have signed grants-in-aid with Auburn as well as high school coaches and sports writers were guests at the club meeting. Many other friends of Auburn attended.

Jimmy Brown, '46, introduced high school coaches and players and press and radio guests who attended.

Miami, Stetson added to

'53 Grid Schedule

OPPONENTS for Auburn's 10-game '53 football schedule were recently announced by Athletic Director Jeff Beard.

Stetson and Miami were the only new names added to next fall's grid list, taking the places of Wofford and Maryland. Auburn ended a three-year contract with Wofford in 1952 and chose not to renew it. Maryland was signed to a one-year contract and could not be rescheduled because of conflicting open dates.

Stetson won 6-0

AUBURN and Stetson have played only once in the past and the Plainsmen lost that one to the Florida College 6-0 in 1927.

Miami has been on the Tiger schedule twice before, with Auburn winning in 1944, 38-19, and Miami getting a 33-7 verdict in 1945.

Coach Shug Jordan's boys will play

Dean Albert B. Moore elected

New NCAA President

NOT ONLY Auburnites but all Alabamians smiled proudly on January 10 when it was announced that Dean Albert E. Moore, '11, had been elected president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Dean Moore, head of the graduate school at the University of Alabama, takes over the reins of the NCAA with the collegiate organization at what the Associated Press calls "its greatest strength." The NCAA is a policing organization that rules athletic affairs in the nation's colleges.

Election was close

THE ELECTION of Dean Moore was the first close election of the NCAA in almost a decade. Dean Moore won by a vote of 81-72 over William H. McCarter, Dartmouth athletic director, despite a large bloc of Eastern votes. He succeeds Hugh C. Willett, University of California president, who has served three terms.

A member of the NCAA Council for the past five years, Dean Moore was commended in many state newspapers after his election to the presidency. Editorially, The Birmingham News said: "People of Alabama have reason to be proud of one of their own people—Dean A. B. Moore of the University of Alabama, who has just been elected president of the NCAA. . . . It is a high honor, and a deserved one."

Zipp Newman, veteran sports editor of The News, wrote: "Dr. A. B. Moore is the first Deep South president of the NCAA since the days of Dr. Wilbur Smith, dean of medicine at Tulane. Where Dr. Smith left off fighting for reform started in the South, Dean Moore took up and carried on, now winning the confidence of the NCAA to serve as president of more than 300 schools and universities."

A historian and author of "History of Alabama," Dean Moore has served as chairman of the University of Alabama's athletic commission since 1941 and has been active in athletic affairs of the Southeastern Conference. He has been dean of the University's Graduate School since 1924.

Graduated in 1911

DR. MOORE received the Bachelor of Science degree from Auburn in 1911, and the Master of Science a year later. He was awarded a Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago in 1921, and went to the University of Alabama in 1923 as head of the history department. Soon after he was made dean of the Graduate School and only gave up his history connection in 1951 to devote his full time to the school.

"Most of my time at present is given to graduate work," says Dean Moore. And he has given a lot of time to this job since he took over in 1924. For during those 29 years, there has been a large growth of both the department of history and the Graduate School. A strong master's program has been developed, involving practically all departments of the University, and the Ph.D. degree is now being offered in nine departments and schools of the University.

"Occasionally I teach a course in history and I still do some historical writing, but most of my time must be given over to the Graduate School if the work there is to be kept running smoothly," Dean Moore states.

Born in Fayette County

BORN at Belk, Alabama, in Fayette County, Dean Moore was one of nine children. And during his grade school days at Hamilton, he dreamed of becoming a locomotive engineer, waiting until his latter high school years to grasp the ambition to be a history teacher.

THE STATE of Alabama was highly honored on January 10 when one of its native sons, Dean A. B. Moore, A.P.I. graduate of 1911, and Dean of the Uni-

The graduate dean first became interested in history during his early school days. "My first lesson in history was the presidential election of 1840, and the slogan 'Tippecanoe and Tyler Too' appealed powerfully to my imagination. This was the onset of my interest in history."

Patience, recognized as an essential quality for teachers, was developed by Dean Moore in a peculiar way—while working at his father's sawmill. "I began hauling logs with oxen at the age of 13," Dean Moore reflects, "and driving oxen probably helped me to develop the habit of patience, an asset that has been exceedingly valuable to me in teaching."

versity of Alabama's Graduate School, was elected president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which rules over the nation's college sports

Remembering Auburn comes easy with Dr. Moore. He recalls the loveliest village as "a small town with unpaved streets, a town where friendliness and good fellowship prevailed. It seemed to revolve around the college and its people were duly indulgent in their attitude toward the college students. Some of the landmarks were Burton's Book Store, Shell Toomer's Drug Store (a popular rendezvous for students), the little post office, McElhaney's Hotel, Smith's Livery Stable, and the churches to which we were marched in military fashion on each Sunday morning.

"The Administration Building (now Samford Hall), in which I met most of my classes," stands out in Dean Moore's description of the college plant. He also includes "Langdon Hall, in which chapel and graduation exercises were held (each morning the student body was marched in military formation into this hall for chapel exercises); the library; Smith Hall; the agriculture building, greenhouse, and the stables and barns on 'Ag Hill,' south of the main campus."

Comments on studies

IN commenting on the Auburn studies that have aided him most in his career, Dr. Moore lists "history and language (English literature, Latin, French, and German). In Dr. George Petrie's 'History Laboratory' I learned the techniques of historical investigation and writing, and the critical evaluation of historical materials.

"In President Thach's courses in English literature I developed a deep interest in literature. Both Dr. Petrie and President Thach were great and inspiring teachers. They influenced my life greatly and helped me develop a love for learning."

Dean Moore recalls very vividly several of the professors who instructed him at A.P.I. "Dr. Petrie was keen, resourceful, and witty. He was superb in analysis and led his students to look at all sides of a question. He was a master of boys and could command the attention of large groups. I have never seen his equal in conducting oral quizzes and discussions.

Recalls President Thach

"PRESIDENT Thach was less formal and methodical than Dr. Petrie, but his immense enthusiasm for his subject, whether literature or psychology, aroused the interest of his students.

"Prof. J. P. C. Southhall was a brilliant teacher of physics. More interested, apparently, in his subject than his students, he gave every problem a merciless scrutiny and presented it with an eloquence that was highly entertaining. To make a lecture in physics like chautauqua is indeed an achievement. Each of these men in his own way was a great teacher."

Vivid memory of Auburn

FAVORITE among Dean Moore's reminiscences about Auburn are "Shell Toomer's Drug Store, the locale of many a gab fest with jovial Crow Wright, a frequent participant; Mrs. Ross's Sunday School Class; the long line of clipped and scarred heads of freshmen marching to the various churches on Sunday morning in springtime; Dr. Petrie's 'History Laboratory' and my years of inspiring associations with him; and meeting Miss Ruby Myrick, a native of Wetumpka, Alabama, who was later to become my wife. I could walk to the very spot where I was introduced to her as she sat with friends in an automobile."

Has many achievements

DURING his long and colorful teaching career, Dean Moore has participated in many activities. He has served as Director, Survey of Federal Archives in Alabama; President, Conference of Deans of Southern Graduate Schools, and President, Alabama Historical Association.

In addition to his "History of Alabama," a text published in 1935 and used by Alabama colleges, Dean Moore has written two others—"Conscription and Conflict in the Confederacy," 1924, and "A History of Alabama and Her People," 1927. He has also written a number of historical articles for both state and national magazines.

More Active Alumni

NEARLY 400 names have been added to the active membership role of the Auburn Alumni Association since the last issue of The Alumnews.

The results are good, but they've got to be better if the association is to realize its goal of "23 for '53" for all counties and states. The aim is for 23 per cent of all alumni to become active members.

Loyal alumni can serve the association by encouraging alumni in their community to pay their '53 dues and support their association.

The names of all alumni paying their dues will be listed each month in The Alumnews.

Shug sounds call for spring training

SPRING TRAINING on the Plains began February 8 and the interest surpasses any that the Tigers have ever had. From hereout, the only specialist we'll have will be the "sixty minute man." There are still only 30 days to get 20 sessions in, so A-Day will be Saturday, March 7.

Auburn has approximately 80 grid-ers participating in the spring drills, plus many students hoping for glances from the coaching staff.

The A-Day climax will feature the probable 1953 football picture because few freshmen can make the magic step under the new rules. Definitely out of the drills are: Vince Dooley, recuperating from a January knee operation; Jack Locklear, still favoring a leg broken against Clemson; Jackie Creel, nursing a knee injury sustained in September, and guard Bob Burns, recovering from a shoulder separation in a Auburn's A-1 recruiting job a year ago is paying dividends. Call it insight, or far sight, but Jordan and his assistants had two-way freshmen last fall, so don't gasp at the high number on the first three teams on A-Day—they'll be real football players.

Soon you'll be reading about them, so familiarize yourself with just a few—ends Vince Nardone, Don Allen, Bill Conner, Ed Lawson, and Jim Crouch; tackles Frank D'Agostino, Frank Abt, M. L. Brackett, and Don Ellis; guards Dolan King, Chuck Maxime, Earl Bush, Emmett Boldt, and Homer Davis; centers Ben Lightfoot and Dan Clayton, and backs Johnny Adams, Ray Mercer, Fob James, Jr., Jim Peerson, Bob Scarbrough, Bunnie Robinson, Dave Stapleton, Joe Childress, Billy Whitten, and Roy Waters.

Despite handicaps, Eaves has good team

BASKETBALL is still here; football is enjoying a new look, and baseball is coming.

Joel Eaves has rounded a fine cage team into action and despite every handicap known to man, he has got a good team. Few Auburn teams have played better than the Tigers did in their 82-60 upset of the Mississippi State Maroons. The team connected on 32 of their 71 field goal attempts for a 45.3 shooting percentage.

The flu struck down veterans Jim Martin, Bob Fenn, Johnny Cochran, Gordon Mummert, and Bob Wright, but in jumped Bill Kirkpatrick and freshman Kay Blayden, Walt Stoudenmire, and Doyle Haynes, and the Tigers rolled on.

Guard Jack Turner and center Bob Miller have been setting the pace but Eaves still has no "star" on the team—it's balanced.

Prospects good for '53 baseball team

DICK MCGOWEN'S baseballers got underway a week ago and this could be another fine team. He has pitchers Buck Bradberry and Ernie Snow returning, plus veterans Jim Walley, Bobby Jordan, Bill McMurphy, Doyle Pair, Joe Davis, and Bob Nagee.

A few things you might not have heard

TIGER SCRATCHES . . . Paul Susce, freshman pitcher from Sarasota, Fla., is quite a thrower and he should be—his father was a big leaguer and is presently a coach for the Boston Red Sox . . . Billy Hitchcock is not saddened by Detroit buying his contract from Philadelphia. Billy will always be a Tiger of some sort, and he put in time with Detroit from 1942 to 1946.

Freshman Fob James, Jr., finished 3rd in the nation in kickoff return yards with 414, plus leading the SEC. . . Speaking of football specialist: Travis Tidwell was looking for a pre-game coin-tossing expert until the NCAA ruled them out. . . Statement of the year: "Any rule change cannot help but aid Auburn."

Senior football players entering wedlock at the close of the season were Guy Bruce, Bobby Jordan, Dudley Spence, Sam Hanks, and Herman Howard. Look for these names to repeat around here by 1972. . . The Finney's are back. Young Reuben won the cake race and is like Pop was on the diamond, a hard-hitting catcher.

Stetson was added to the 1953 menu to adjust the team to the new rules plus furnishing Split-T competition. Ole Miss and State are follow-ups and both split the tea. . . Dean Roger Allen, faculty athletic chairman, was named to the 17-man NCAA Rules Committee and draws congratulations, plus thanks for a job well done in the past.

Counting the enrollment of frosh gridders Ray Minor, Billy Gilliland, Don Stevens, and Willard Shoults, Auburn has 6,108 students for the winter quarter. . . Things that never change: Birmingham's wonderful alumni again presented watches to graduating football players. When Jack Langford picked his up he was told to also pick up a check from Joe Sarver. Smiling Langford hurriedly put on his watch, but upon looking at the fat check found it blank in the dollar column, but not lacking these words in bold, black print: "Fill this out today, and join the Auburn Alumni Association!"

For Tiger cagers, January is

A 'Cold' Month

JANUARY was a "cold" month for Joel Eaves' basketball team in more ways than one: (1) Injuries and the flu struck down eight boys; (2) The "Swish Kids" won only five of their nine games, which isn't too bad; (3) Auburn lost to Mississippi in the finals of the Memphis Invitational Tournament.

Auburn enjoyed December and left the old year with five consecutive victories—none of which counted in the conference.

With the February home stretch calling for two games with Florida, and single contests with Vanderbilt, Mississippi, L.S.U., Tulane and Alabama, the Tigers had 10 wins in 14 starts and a three-three conference record.

Guard Jack Turner was setting the scoring pace with 152 points, a 10.9 average. Close behind was center Bob Miller with 134; forward Jim O'Donnell, 111; guard Bubber Farish, 106; forward

John Cochran, 102, and a dozen others bringing the years total to 1,012 points, a game average of 72.3.

A win starts year

THE NEW YEAR started with a January 2 win over Memphis State, 78-64, in the opening round of the Invitational Tourney. Centers Bob Fenn and Bob Miller set the pace with 14 and 13 points, respectively, while Turner and forward Jim Martin added 12 each.

Mississippi handed the Tigers their first loss in the tourney finals, 65-55. Miller showed the only double column scoring as he connected for 15 points.

Forwards Bill Fickling and Cochran, and Miller joined forces to kyo Birmingham Southern, 84-59, on the home court with 14 points apiece. Freshman O'Donnell of Hackensack, N. J., blossomed out as he added 13 more.

Auburn In January

NOT IN ABOUT five years have Auburn students experienced such a January as the one just past. A mild influenza epidemic caused the big disturbance of the month, chasing nearly 500 ailing students over to see Dr. Morgan W. Brown, director of student health.

Other events in the month's activities were normal yet most would agree that it was quite a busy 31 days. Those who were lucky enough to be overlooked by the flu bug enjoyed the Beaux Arts Ball, more than a half dozen fraternity and sorority formals, a Shakespearean Play, and three Auburn cage victories on the local hardwood floor.

But while these events were making history, students were busy developing ideas and plans for even better things to come. Religious Emphasis Week began on the campus February 1, and the date for the second annual "Greek Week" was set as February 22-28.

With these and other activities strongly in mind, Auburn looked forward to an even busier time ahead, with the flu scare gone and mid-term exams near at hand.

New Plainsman editor

WEDNESDAY of the first week of school found The Auburn Plainsman rolling off the press as usual, but this time with a new editor. Max Hall, Hartselle senior, was named new editor for the winter and spring quarters upon the former editor's resignation to take another editorial position with the college.

Hall, a member of Spades and Omicron Delta Kappa honoraries, stepped up from the job of managing editor, and promptly named Les Ford to the position. Ford is a junior in industrial management from Greenville, Miss.

New traffic law

TRAFFIC VIOLATORS on the campus and in the city of Auburn were warned early in January to "start taking it easy" when the City Council adopted a new traffic ordinance.

The move was calculated to reduce the increasing toll being taken by auto accidents on local streets and highways. It fixed severe penalties for reckless, speeding or intoxicated drivers.

State Cotton Maid

ELIZABETH Gregory, junior in animal husbandry, in January became the second Auburn coed in two straight years to become Alabama's Maid of Cotton.

Miss Gregory, chosen alternate Maid in Birmingham last October, was elevated to the coveted title when Alice Corr, Selma, already Alabama's Maid of Cotton, won the National Maid title.

Another A.P.I. coed, Anniston's Catherine Bailey Lineberger, won the Alabama Maid of Cotton title in '52, and placed fifth in the national judging.

Enrollment now 6,108

IN KEEPING with the present trend at Auburn, the winter quarter enrollment soared far above Registrar Charles Edwards' expectations.

Edwards reported the enrollment total to be 6,108, some 450 more than had been anticipated. This compares with 5,360 for the winter quarter last year and 6,401 for the fall quarter of '52. Auburn now ranks sixth among Southern universities in total enrollment. Only Florida, L.S.U., Texas, Miami, and Houston Universities have higher enrollments than Auburn.

The School of Engineering showed the largest enrollment with 1,445. Other schools are agriculture, 588; architecture, 506; chemistry, 256; education, 1,140; home economics, 271; pharmacy, 236; science and literature, 1,416, and veterinary medicine, 252.

If the present increasing enrollment continues, Registrar Edwards feels that Auburn will have nearly 7,000 students by next year, coming close to the all-time peak of 7,600.

Flu hits campus

BY THE END of the month, Auburn's sudden influenza epidemic had nearly ended; though close to 50 students were still in Drake Infirmary.

Approximately 500 cases were diagnosed by college health officers, and for a time the college health facilities were strained considerably. The school administration handled the problem very efficiently, however, installing beds in two dormitories and providing adequate medical care to meet the needs.

County Health Officer William Askew, in comparing the January epidemic with those of the past, said that influenza on a scale such as this appears only every four or five years, and that this one seemed no worse than those before it.

'Hidden Desires' revealed

"HIDDEN DESIRES," theme of the 17th annual Beaux Arts Ball, were made known at this masquerade costume ball in the student activities building January 23.

Betty Jane Shackelford, junior from Dalton, Ga., and Rudy Spolestra, junior from Holland, were selected Queen and King of the Ball. Other couples at the dance picked the Queen and King from a number of other contestants.

A great number of masked revelers in fantastic costumes attended to hear music provided by Benny Hamner and his dance band. The ball, a small scale production of the Ecole des Beaux-Arts of the Paris School of fine arts, was sponsored by three architecture honoraries, Decor, Scarab, and Art Guild.

Young concert pianist

LILIAN KALLIR, 18-year-old concert pianist born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, appeared in Langdon Hall January 22 as an attraction presented by the A.P.I. Lecture and Concert Committee.

A large crowd of music lovers heard Miss Kallir, an outstanding musician who has appeared as soloist with some of the finest symphonies in America. She recently opened the Carnegie Pops with the New York Philharmonic at Carnegie Hall.

Foy named secretary

JAMES E. FOY, Auburn director of student affairs, was recently elected Grand Secretary of the national society of Phi Eta Sigma. Mr. Foy is faculty advisor for the local chapter.

As Grand Secretary, Mr. Foy will work with 80 Phi Eta Sigma chapters over the country and will serve as representative at the installation of new chapters. During the past two and a half years, the new secretary has served as editor of the Phi Eta Sigma Forum and was active in bringing a chapter of the freshman scholastic men's honorary to the Auburn campus.

'Love's Labour's Lost'

AUBURN WAS fortunate on January 29 to have the Shakespearean comedy "Love's Labour's Lost" presented in Langdon Hall by the Players, Inc., of the National Theatre Company.

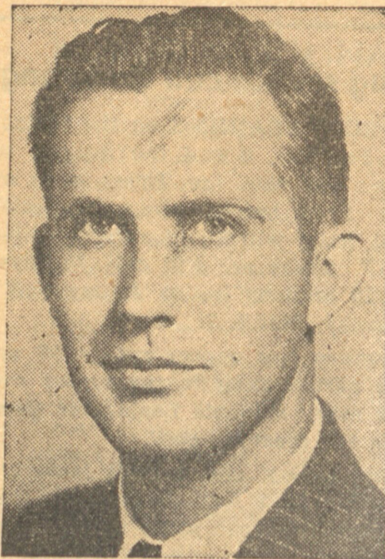

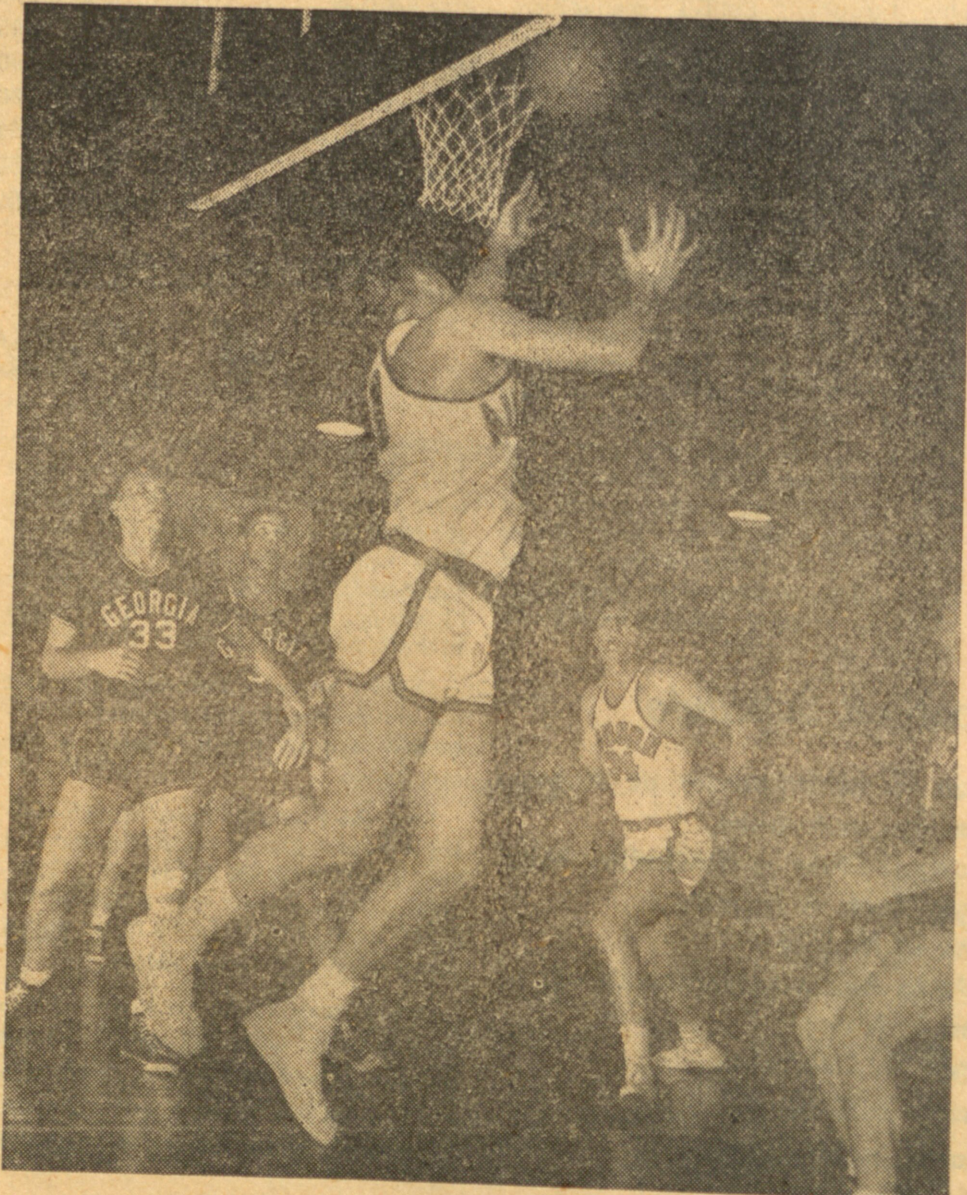

Sponsored by the A.P.I. Lecture and Concert Series, the comedy was staged for two performances, a matinee and an evening performance.

Greek Week plans

GREEK WEEK, 1953 style, will be held on campus February 22-28, and plans for the second annual affair are progressing rapidly.

Campus Scene: Swish Kids get another win

RALPH E. JENNINGS, '48, was awarded recently the DAV National Citizenship Award "for outstanding assistance in behalf of disabled veterans." Now Circulation Director for the Southern Farmer, Mr. Jennings won the citizen salute for work in a former position, Information Officer for the State Employment Service. Senator Lister Hill presented Mr. Jennings with a scroll on behalf of the Disabled American Veterans.

The first Alabamian to receive such an award, he broke all United States records in the placement of handicapped veterans and workers. An honor graduate of A.P.I., Ralph is a disabled veteran who served more than three years in the U.S. Army in World War II. At Auburn he was a member of Spades, President of Blue Key honor society, and managing editor of The Plainsman. Ralph and Bobby Humphrey, '48, started the Bruce Greenhill Scholarship Fund, an award for journalism students at Auburn, dedicated to Marine Lt. Greenhill who was killed in Korea.

AUBURN TRIUMPHED over Georgia, 64-59, in the Bulldogs' back yard for the first SEC victory. Miller tossed in 22 points for the evening. Turner added 13 to start a January whirl, and Fickling dunked 12 points on home cooking.

Georgia Tech rolled on 79-61 to hand Eaves his fourth consecutive loss in Atlanta, as Auburn hit a season's low of 17 goals and only 27 free throws in 43 tries. Turner again topped the Tiger scorers with 16, as Miller contributed 10.

Alabama played the Bama banjo to a 61-51 dance over our boys although we matched them with 20 goals. Yep! Turner again with 10.

Three wins over Georgia

EAVES WHISTLED "Glory to Ole Jawja" following his third consecutive win over Georgia, 78-69. Turner polled 22 points, his season's best, and Miller feasted on 18. Soph. Bill Kirkpatrick jumped in for Farish and added 12 points.

Tennessee's coach commented that Auburn outplayed the Vols in Knoxville but that didn't change the 72-70 loss our boys suffered. The Tigers had 24 field goals to the opposition's 20, but it was the free throws that did the trick again. Turner again with 17, and Kirkpatrick strutting before the home folks with 14.

Year's best game

THE BEST GAME of the year, and possibly the best since the Tulane victory two years ago, came off on the final day of January with a 22-point spread over Mississippi State, 82-60.

For Love Of Auburn

By BENNY MARSHALL

WILBUR HUTSELL looked long at the windowpane streaming Winter rain, smiled the quiet smile that is all Hutsell, and reached inside him for the answer to a questioner who really should have known how he felt now—after 31 years—about the Auburn out beyond his office. . .

"Why this. . . this," said Coach Hutsell, "must be God's chosen place."

He meant every word of it. He has never been known to say a word he didn't mean.

Especially chosen

AND IF AUBURN to Wilbur Hutsell is a place especially selected, so to four generations of Auburn is Wilbur Hutsell a man especially brought to be a part of it.

He's all the great good that is Alabama Polytechnic Institute wrapped up in one kindly, unassuming, honest man. And if the tribute appears, perhaps, a trifle over-enthusiastic, ask any Auburn man; better, ask any who've known him in the years since he came South and became a part of the soul of the school at the "Love-liest Village."

An inseparable pair

THE MAN and the institution are so closely bound that neither ever again could be the same without the other.

It's likely, though, that neither suspected in September of 1921 when he stepped off a train at Auburn, Alabama, that here was the beginning of a lifelong love affair, that this young coach was on the scene to take a place with the War Eagle immortals.

Only Mike Donahue

"MIKE DONAHUE," he relates, "was the only coach Auburn had when I came. He coached everything."

But track was for Hutsell, though he came upon a flock of other duties as season followed upon season. He became basketball coach, he was football trainer for years and years, and served a sort of involuntary hitch as athletic director from 1947 to 1951.

Happiest with track

BUT HE'S ALWAYS happiest when he can devote his full time, energies and conversation to the sport he loves above all others—track and field.

Wilbur Hutsell would rather be down at the cinder track—in Auburn—watching Auburn men run on a Spring afternoon than any place in the world. Man pitting his strength against man and time never fails to thrill him.

Coach Hutsell has coached hundreds who've competed for him and Auburn.

But he won't pick from all of these a single "greatest" trackman.

Auburn's greatest

"SOME OF THE BEST ones," he'll tell you, "have been Percy Beard. . . He won seven national high hurdles championships. . . and Weemie Baskin. . . He won a national collegiate high hurdles title and a National AAU championship. . .

"And Jim Dillion, who's still throwing the discus. . . and Snitz Snider, what a runner he was!

"Whitey Overton was the only runner who ever won a double in the mile and two-mile in the conference meet in successive years.

"We've had lots of great ones."

" . . . a great coach"

COACH and Mrs. Hutsell—the former Corinne Southard of Fort Smith, Arkansas, who went to Auburn with him—have been friends, and more, to thousands of Auburn students in their time. The students have returned their love.

And it takes one of his former stars to tell the final, accurate story on this man who is a living part of old Auburn. . .

"Coach Hutsell," he said, "is one man who always had just as much time for the lowliest freshman as he did for the varsity star.

"All you had to do for him was try. And he tried with you.

quite a difficult task to locate an Auburn man in these parts.

"Now that's not to say that we don't maintain the old Auburn Spirit here, for we do. . . in our own way; and I was more convinced of this than ever before on Monday night, January 19, 1953.

"For that night I was nervously pacing the floor outside the delivery room of the maternity ward at Druid City Hospital, which is just in the shadow of the University here.

"There were two other men in the same predicament as I, and we three were the only ones "sweating it out" at that particular time. . . Having something very much in common we began to chat with each other in an effort to relieve our tension.

"It wasn't long before we discovered that we had something else in common, for it turned out that we were all Auburn Alumni, and we all became the proud fathers of fine boys.

"SO THE OLD "War Eagle" cry echoed up and down the corridors of that maternity ward just a few blocks from the University of Alabama.

And you can tell Shug and the staff that Malcolm Edwards, '39, Rufus Deal, '42, and Burt Vardeman, '49, all former Auburns, are doing our bit to contribute to the Auburn Football Re-Building program right here in sight of the University, our state rival."

Burt's wife is the former Martha Frances Hay, '48, daughter of the Rev. Sam B. Hay, who for 25 years was minister of the Auburn Presbyterian Church. The Reverend Hay is now president of Stillman Institute in Tuscaloosa.

Ten Best Alabama Buildings

AUBURN'S CAPACITY to produce top men in the field of architecture was given a boost in January with the announcement by the Alabama Society of Architects of the 10 best buildings constructed in Alabama during 1952.

Architectural firms that constructed the award-winning buildings were predominantly made up of Auburn alumni.

First place among the awards for excellence of design went to the Leeth National Bank, of Cullman, architect for which was the Birmingham firm of Van Keuren, Davis and Co.

Edgar B. Van Keuren finished at A.P.I. in 1909, and Charles Davis graduated in 1931.

Second place winner

SECOND PLACE went to Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carroll, Hurtsboro, for their home. Sherlock, Smith and Adams, Montgomery, were architects for the structure. Of this firm, Moreland G. Smith is an Auburn alumnus, having received his degree in 1928.

Van Keuren, Davis and Co. also constructed the Anniston YMCA, which was given third place in the judging.

The Bullock County Hospital at Union Springs won fourth place, and was designed by Sherlock, Smith and Adams, previously mentioned as the firm which constructed the building winning second place.

Honorable mention

WINNING honorable mention was the Ray Brooks Machinery Co., Inc., Montgomery, designed by Pearson, Tittle and Narrows.

Parker Narrows is a 1941 graduate of Auburn, and Clyde C. Pearson, graduate of '26, is now serving as president of the Auburn Alumni Association.

Lawrence S. Whitten, '28, Birmingham, was chosen new president of the Alabama Society of Architects at its meeting in the Thomas Jefferson Hotel in Birmingham.

War Eagle!

THEY SAY you're likely to meet up with Auburn alumni in almost any part of the world—Egypt, Greenland, anywhere!

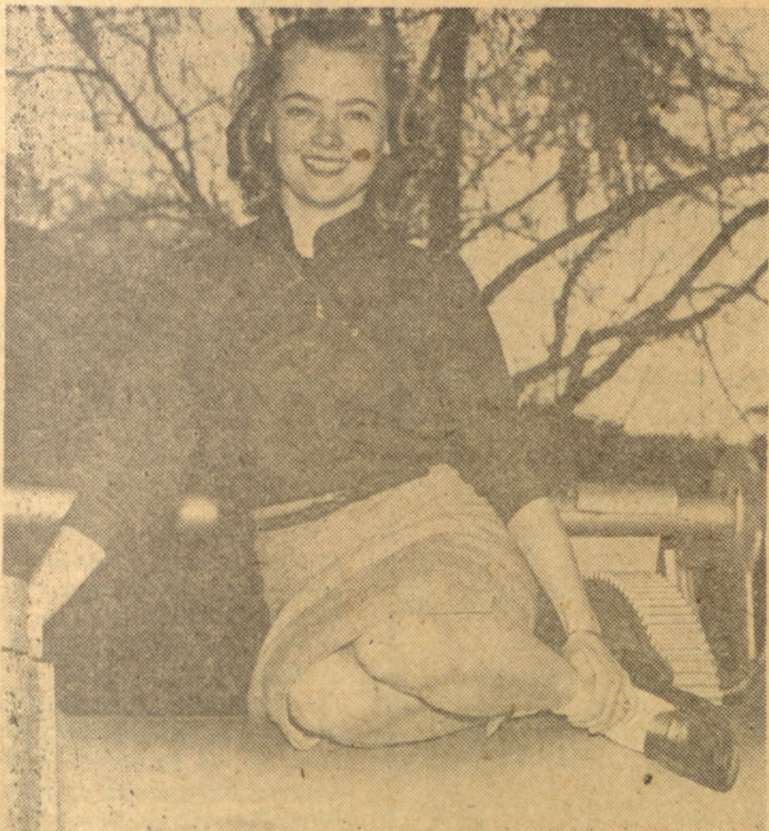

But even more strange sometimes than the country in which you may run into former "War Eagles" is the situation as Burt Vardeman, '49, can testify. . .

And it doesn't always have to be in another country. . . this happened right here in Alabama.

Read what Burt wrote recently in a letter to The Alumnews. . .

" . . . a hard life"

"HERE IN Tuscaloosa, home of the University of Alabama, we Auburns live a rather hard life and during a football season, such as the one just past, it is

"JUST LIKE the frosting on a cake, this young lady tops off the Lathe." That was the description given this Pretty Auburn coed when she was featured as "Loveliest of the Plains" in The Plainsman last month, and the Alumnews agrees. She is Cordelia Parker, a freshman from Opelika

Enjoying unprecedented popularity

Bigger Enrollments Expected

DESPITE the current national trend toward a decrease in college enrollment, Auburn is fortunate at present in being able to enjoy an unprecedented popularity among high school graduates of Alabama.

More and more of Alabama's high school seniors are showing a desire to obtain their college educations at Auburn. They're naming Auburn as their first choice.

Dr. Mullins' report

AS DR. DAVID W. Mullins, executive vice-president of the college, pointed out in his fall report to the A.P.I. Board of Trustees, "An increasingly larger proportion of students graduating from high school are entering college. And a much larger percentage of those planning to attend college indicates a desire to come to Auburn than in previous years."

Dr. Mullins further explained that "each year an out-of-state agency conducts a survey among high school seniors in which the students are asked a number of questions, including college preference, first and second choices.

Auburn first choice

"A STUDY of the survey for seniors graduating in the spring of 1953 indicates that approximately 30 per cent of the boys and 18 per cent of the girls gave Auburn as their first choice.

"It should be pointed out, of course, that many of those giving Auburn as their first choice very likely will not go to college at all. However, it does indicate that large numbers do wish to attend Auburn."

Trend is downward

IN HIS REPORT, Dr. Mullins discussed the fact that during the past three years, the nation-wide trend in college enrollment has been downward.

However, the enrollment at Auburn has not declined nearly so sharply as in most universities and colleges, the vice-president said. It did decrease somewhat, though, and the enrollment last year was less than that of the preceding year.

Should rise by '56

NATIONAL predictions have indicated that the downward trend in enrollment would continue until 1956 or 1957; following this, it was predicted that there would begin a sharp rise which would continue for several years.

Based on these predictions, it was anticipated that the enrollment at Auburn during '52-'53 would be approximately nine per cent less than that of '51-'52. But, according to Dr. Mullins, final enrollment figures did not prove this prediction out.

New Auburn record

A NEW RECORD was established with the fall enrollment of '52, when more than 2,000 freshmen students entered Auburn, topping all other records for entering freshman classes in the history of the school.

Then, too, the number of transfer students from other institutions was larger than had been anticipated by the college. The result was that rather than a decline of nine per cent, as had been expected over the corresponding cent increase over the corresponding fall quarter of '51.

More Vets to enter

INDICATIONS point to an even larger enrollment in the years immediately ahead. The entering class in the fall of '53, provided housing facilities are available, will likely be as large as, if not larger than, the entering class of the fall of '52.

A big factor behind the increased enrollment, in addition to the increasing number of high school students entering college, is thought to be the G. I. Bill of Rights for Korean Veterans. More than 400 Korean veterans were enrolled in the fall, and many more enrolled at the beginning of the winter quarter.

STUDIES conducted on a national basis indicate that a much higher percentage of the Korean veterans will likely take advantage of the G. I. Bill than was true in the case of the veterans of World War II.

In line with the trend, the present winter quarter enrollment zoomed above expectations by more than 450. And the unexpected number, bringing the total to 6,108, was credited by College Registrar Charles Edwards to the returning of Korean veterans.

Sixth in South

WITH A FALL enrollment of 6,401, Auburn ranked sixth among Southern institutions in total enrollment, according to statistics published by the U. S. Office of Education.

The largest university in Alabama now, Auburn may have nearly 7,000 students by next year, so Registrar Edwards predicts, if the current trend of increasing enrollment continues. The all-time record is 7,600.

Education leads

EDWARDS believes "enrollment by quarters is leveling off at between 5,000 and 6,000 per quarter and will probably remain at this level until about 1955."

"Over a five year period the Schools of Engineering, Science and Literature, and Education have had the highest net enrollments of the college. For the second year Education was in first place, with Engineering second, and Science and Literature third," the registrar said in his report to the trustees.

784 graduate students

NET GRADUATE enrollment continues to increase, with 784 students enrolled last year. Education students constitute 80 per cent of the graduate students enrolled and represent one area where numbers and long-time potential undoubtedly justify Post-Master's degree study, Edwards stated.

All graduates in the history of the institution now total more than 22,000, including those of the more recent past two quarters.

MULLINS . . . bigger enrollments

" . . . can meet demands"

AUBURN'S increasing enrollment is accounted by President Ralph Draughon to the growing prestige and respect that it is gaining as an outstanding university, and to the recognition of the college's worth.

With higher enrollment comes greater demands, but President Draughon feels that the college can and will meet these demands. It is his sincere belief that Auburn "will continue to grow in influence, character, and prestige so long as it continues to provide sound instruction, needed research, and helpful extension services to our people."

This Issue Marks Our Seventh Birthday

THIS ISSUE of your Auburn Alumnews marks the beginning of the paper's eighth year of service to alumni.

Founded in February of 1946, The Alumnews has progressed rapidly, until today it enjoys with its general edition a circulation of more than 23,000.

SINCE the first issue of The Alumnews rolled off the press, the paper has sought to be a cooperative undertaking shared by both the staff of The Alumnews and, most important, all of Auburn's alumni.

Without the active help and interest of alumni, it would be next to impossible to produce a top notch paper. The Alumnews depends to a great extent on material sent in by former students.

Clippings, letters, magazine articles, personal experiences . . . these are only a few of the ways in which news of alumni reaches the Alumnews office.

As our eighth year gets underway, The Alumnews has this simple message for its readers: Remember that this is YOUR paper, yours to read, enjoy, and improve by your cooperation.

Send in news of yourself and your family, and The Alumnews will strive to continue its production of an A-1 paper. Let's keep this in mind always: it's all for a Greater Auburn.

Tidwell Resigns

ANNOUNCEMENT was made on February 9 of the resignation of Travis Tidwell, '49, as assistant Auburn coach.

Tidwell, former Tiger football great, plans to enter private business.

His resignation is effective March 1, Athletic Director Jeff Beard said. The announcement did not list the type of business Tidwell plans to enter but said he would be employed in Florida or Alabama.

A quarterback and topnotch passer, Tidwell was named most outstanding player in the Southeastern Conference in his senior year at Auburn, '49. He played for two seasons with the New York pro Giants before joining the Auburn coaching staff last September.

At press time, a replacement for Tidwell on the coaching staff has not been chosen.

In praising the work of Mr. Lowery over the past year, the monthly agricultural magazine noted that he "has made significant and important contributions to better farming in Alabama in three distinct fields: cotton, corn, and cattle" during his quarter of a century of service as an agronomist.
